

English Language Evaluators

(Contract)

Specializing in Human Resource Consulting, EPSI is currently seeking to employ contract employees to carry out oral language proficiency evaluations for our various clients.

Based on his or her availability, the language evaluator will call candidates and, based on a structured guide, will ask them a variety of questions in order to assess their ability to communicate in English. The evaluator will be expected to record the conversations with the candidates and to provide a written justification for the scores they will assign. To be able to carry out the assessments, the evaluator must have a personal computer with MS Word and MS Excel as well as an Internet connection.

A language evaluator will spend approximately three to ten hours weekly carrying out evaluations. Each evaluation takes approximately 20 to 30 minutes to complete. However, due to the nature of this contract, EPSI cannot guarantee a minimum number of evaluations per day.

The language evaluator must be available to work during the day, in the evening and on weekends. Training on the use of the recording equipment as well as on the use of the assessment guide and tools will be provided.

Evaluators will be compensated per completed evaluation; evaluations will be scheduled based on the evaluator's availability.

Applicants to the language evaluator position must have a Bachelor's degree or must be in the process of completing their Master's degree in one of the following fields: English language, translation and/or education.

Should this position be of interest, feel free to forward your resume no later than January 7, 2018, to:
